Creative Conversations at SFCC

Santa Fe, NM, Sept. 15, 2009 — Creative Santa Fe offers the newest installment of its Creative Conversations series with a talk and tour by Douglas Barkey, dean of Santa Fe Community College's School of Arts and Design, Wednesday, Sept. 23 at 5:30 p.m. in the Visual Arts Gallery on the SFCC campus, 6401 Richards Ave.

Creative Conversations is an ongoing series showcasing talented and creative individuals who are making an impact on the Santa Fe community. Following a short greeting and introduction by dean Barkey, guests will learn more about the community college's art and design programs, meet faculty and tour the arts facilities. Guests can also view the newest photographic exhibition inside the Visual Arts Gallery, "Ruta Sinuosa" by Ricardo Martínez. The exhibition is a series of 46 black and white photographs documenting the lives of the Tarahumara people, the indigenous inhabitants of Copper Canyon, a region in Chihuahua, Mexico, noted for both its beauty and poverty.

The event is free and open to the public. Light refreshments provided. For more information, call 428-1731.
